	Vote NO on Proposition A . . . As San Francisco emerges from the pandemic, we're all asking about the future of urban work, downtown offices and commuting. Work from home has become accepted, a norm, and the impact on MUNI has been dramatic. Weekday ridership has plummeted to about half of 2019 levels, and MUNI officials admit it will take years to understand the impact of COVID-19, according to the San Francisco Chronicle. Flying blind, City Hall rushed Proposition A onto the ballot, which will immediately thrust another $400M in bond debt upon San Francisco and impose higher taxes on all property, including higher residential property taxes, with half passed on to tenants as higher rents. There is no clear vision for where, or how, MUNI will spend the money. Proposition A also imposes on MUNI, for the first time, the Board of Supervisors' outlandish and expensive "Project Labor Agreements" scheme, which ends competitive bidding in most cases. Politicians always ask for bonds to fund ordinary expenses like maintaining roads, transit and schools, while they spend recurring revenues on programs that have less support, like the City's complex of "nonprofits" that wield so much influence over San Francisco's broken policies toward affordable housing, and the homeless, drug abuse and mental illness. City Hall should live within its means – borrow less! – and get more done with existing revenue, without raising more taxes. San Francisco has more than enough money to fix potholes and maintain trains, tracks and buses. Vote NO on Proposition A. Your vote is important. 1/3rd of the voters can defeat this. Larry Marso
