	Early care and education (ECE) is at the heart of educational justice and equity for Latinx young children, their families and our communities. ECE prepares our young children with the social, emotional and cognitive abilities needed to succeed in school and in life while allowing parents to work. The ECE sector is a major source of employment for early educators and small business owners.
	Proposition F will ensure that the 2,500 young children—40% of whom are Latinx—who are waiting for subsidized ECE will have access to quality early education. Without it, our children will start kindergarten behind, leading to a lifetime of inequitable outcomes. Unless parents have reliable ECE for their children, they are unable to work, leading to food, housing and health insecurity and destabilization in the Mission District and across vulnerable San Francisco neighborhoods. Proposition F will also raise wages for the 4,000 ECE educators, 40% of whom are immigrants, to fairly compensate them for their essential role in keeping San Francisco working.

HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES NONPROFITS SUPPORT PROP F!
Proposition F reforms the business tax to protect small business while imposing fair taxes on those who have benefited the most from our City's years of wealth. With a pandemic threatening our health and economy, San Francisco needs this measure to balance the City budget. It will help pay for healthcare and COVID-19 costs, homeless and behavioral health services, childcare and more. It will prevent deep budget cuts to programs that help people who are unemployed, sick, or lacking food and other necessities. Without it, more City residents will lose their jobs and homes. Vote yes!

	CPAC works with San Francisco to identify local priorities and policies for early care & education (ECE). This ballot measure is essential to correct the early educational gaps through child care and related resources for our youngest population. Ninety percent of brain development occurs before the age of five yet child care educators are among the lowest-paid workforce, making far less than K-12 teachers. In addition, there are thousands of children on the SF child care waitlist. ECE educators are essential workers and the backbone of San Francisco's economy. Increased compensation is needed to maintain a skilled and stable workforce to provide for the well-being of our children, families, and communities. Proposition F will release funds for ECE educators to support their continued work, as well as funds that will go to clearing the SF child care waitlist, ensuring SF's youngest have access to quality early education during the most crucial years. Our children are counting on us to take care of them, this ballot measure provides us with the opportunity to do so. Patricia Sullivan

	We are a coalition of Black ECE educators and community members. Proposition F will ensure that San Francisco's Black children and early childhood educators will have the necessary resources to support a community that has too long been deprived of a pathway to success. Each year the Children's Council of San Francisco provides childcare information, referral for services and subsidy assistance to 4,000 extremely low-income families, of whom 33% are African American (1,320 families). Despite this support there are still over 500 low-income Black children on the waitlist for childcare in San Francisco. The most recent school readiness report (2019) reveals that only 47% of Black children are deemed "ready" for kindergarten. In 2018 the San Francisco Public Health Department reported that Black children and families have the highest rates of poverty, the lowest median income, the lowest percentage of college graduates and the lowest life expectancy. Black early childhood educators also face enormous challenges while providing crucial and essential services to young children. In 2019 the Center for the Study of Child Care Employment found that 50% of Black early childhood educators live in poverty and regardless of their educational attainment, are consistently the lowest paid members of the workforce. This ballot measure will ensure that Black children and Black educators will begin to receive the educational investment and care they deserve. With the release of these funds San Francisco can support young Black children as they take their first steps to lifelong learning. The systemic economic disparity that deprives Black children with the hope of a better future begins with this measure. These funds are essential in building a foundation of success. Despite this support there are still over 500 low-income Black children on the waitlist for childcare in San Francisco. The most recent school readiness report (2019) reveals that only 47% of Black children are deemed “ready” for kindergarten. In 2018 the San Francisco Public Health Department reported that Black children and families have the highest rates of poverty, the lowest median income, the lowest percentage of college graduates and the lowest life expectancy. Black early childhood educators also face enormous challenges while providing crucial and essential services to young children. In 2019 the Center for the Study of Child Care Employment found that 50% of Black early childhood educators live in poverty and regardless of their educational attainment, are consistently the lowest paid members of the workforce. This ballot measure will ensure that Black children and Black educators will begin to receive the educational investment and care they deserve. With the release of these funds San Francisco can support young Black children as they take their first steps to lifelong learning. The systemic economic disparity that deprives Black children with the hope of a better future begins with this measure. These funds are essential in building a foundation of success.
