71% of San Francisco's homeless population was once housed in San Francisco.

Proposition K recognizes the fact that the vast majority of our unhoused neighbors once had homes here in the City. A recent study showed that 71% of the homeless population – and 86% of homeless families – were housed in San Francisco before becoming homeless. We need to scale up our construction of low-income affordable housing to bring our neighbors off the street. Prop K is a new tool to bring deeply affordable social housing to meet the needs of our housing crisis. Join us in voting YES on K.

Bring permanently affordable Social Housing to San Francisco by voting YES on K.

Proposition K will authorize a pilot program for municipally-owned social housing in San Francisco. The measure clears a legal hurdle from 1950, known as Article 34 of the California Constitution, which prohibits this type of deeply affordable housing without majority approval by voters. Social housing is prevalent in major cities across the globe. In Vienna, where 62% of housing is decommodified, the average household pays 21% of income in rent. Municipal social housing can be built at larger scale, with the highest green standards and union labor for both construction and management. Move San Francisco housing forward by voting YES on K!

Affordable, sustainable housing is key to addressing our climate crisis. Yes on K.

By creating deeply affordable housing in the city, we will ensure that working people have access to the jobs and services they need without commuting long distances. And because the housing created under this measure will be municipally owned, it will have stronger green building standards, including electrification and clean electricity. Let's create housing we can afford, and a planet we can live on! Vote YES on K.
